What can you do when Google is not cooperating?!
Do you need to learn new vocabulary? Quiz yourself or study?

Make a Quizlet: https://quizlet.com/latest

Create flashcards using index cards, post it notes, pieces of paper….

Have you read a good book lately?

You can search our library site and pick something new to read - a book, a magazine…

https://www.irvingtonschools.org/domain/4311

Do you have a project or paper to do that is stretched over a few days or even weeks?

Create a calendar or chart to organize your time and efforts!

You can use a Word Doc, pen and paper, a calendar creator on line…

Did you start a new topic in a class? Continue with material?

Use some time to review your notes - highlight them

Do you have questions for your teacher? Something you need, don't understand or want to know more about?

Email your teacher.

Write yourself a note to make an appointment to see him or her.

Have you been super busy? Need a break? Take ten minutes:

Listen to some music. Enjoy the quiet. Walk outside or sit outside.

Turn off your screen, your mind and your To Do list….

Free write…

Take 15 minutes and just write. Don't think about the format, the word choice, the formality. You are your own audience….

Get inspired with a Ted Talk!

So many to choose from: pick a topic and search!

https://www.ted.com/talks

Organize your bookbag and work space at home. Is it as clutter free as possible?

Do you have paper, pens and pencils?

Do you need more light? Are you distracted by anything near you?